1. בבלי שבת קיז:

גּוּפָא: נִשְׁבְּרָה לוֹ חָבִית בְּרֹאשׁ גַּגוֹ – מֵבִיא כְּלִי וּמַנִּים תַּחְתֶּיהָ, וּבְלְבַד שֶׁלֹא יָבִיא כְּלִי אַחֵר וְיִקְלוֹט, כְּלִי אַחֵר וִיצָרַף. נִיְדַּמְנוּ לוֹ אוֹרְחִין – מֵבִיא כְּלִי אַחֵר וְקוֹלֵט, כְּלִי אַחֵר וּמְצָרַף. וְלֹא יִקְלוֹט וְאַחַר כְּדְּ יַזְמִין, אֶלֶא יַזְמִין וְאַחַר כָּדְּ יִקְלוֹט. וְאֵין מַעֲרִימִין בְּּכָדְ, מִשׁוּם רַבִּי יוֹסֵי בַּר יְהוּדָה אָמְרוּ: מַעֲרִימִין.

Apropos this baraita, the Gemara discusses the matter itself: If one's barrel broke atop one's roof on Shabbat, one may bring a vessel and place it under the barrel to salvage its contents, and this is permitted provided that one does not bring another vessel and place it on the ground to catch the liquid, another vessel and attach the vessel next to the roof. If guests happen to come over and one needs more to drink, one may bring another vessel and catch the liquid, and one may bring another vessel and attach it. And one may not catch the liquid and then invite guests; rather, one must first invite guests, and afterward catch the liquid. Until one invites guests, there is no need for the beverage, and one will be catching the liquid in a prohibited manner. And one may not employ artifice in this. In the name of Rabbi Yosei bar Yehuda, they said: One may even employ artifice.

לֵימָא בִּפְלוּגְתָּא דְּרַבִּי אֱלִיעֶזֶר וְרַבִּי יְהוֹשָׁעַ קָמִיפַּלְגִי? דְּתַנְיָא: אוֹתוֹ וְאֶת בְּנוֹ שֶׁנַּפְלוּ לְבוֹר? – רַבִּי אֱלִיעֶזֶר אוֹמֵר: מַעֲלֶה אֶת הָרִאשׁוֹן עַל מְנָת לְשׁוֹחְטוֹ, וְהַשֵּׁנִי עוֹשֶׁה לוֹ פַּרְנָסָה בִּמְקוֹמוֹ בִּשְׁבִיל שֶׁלֹא יָמוּת. רַבִּי יְהוֹשָׁעַ אוֹמֵר: מַעֲלֶה אֶת הָרִאשׁוֹן עַל מְנָת לְשׁוֹחְטוֹ וְאֵינוֹ שׁוֹחֲטוֹ, וּמַעֲרִים וּמַעֲלֶה אֶת הַשִּׁנִי – רָצָה זֶה שׁוֹחֵט, רָצָה זֶה שׁוֹחֵט.

Let us say that Rabbi Yosei bar Yehuda and the Rabbis disagree in the dispute between Rabbi Eliezer and Rabbi Yehoshua, as it was taught in a baraita: With regard to it and its offspring that fell into a pit on a Festival, Rabbi Eliezer says: One may raise the first in order to slaughter it, and then slaughter it; and with regard to the second one, one may provide it sustenance in its place in the pit so that it will not die. Rabbi Yehoshua says: One may raise the first in order to slaughter it, and then reconsider and not slaughter it, and one may employ artifice and raise the second. One may slaughter either animal.

מְפַּאי? דִּילְמָא עַד כָּאן לָא קָאָמַר רַבִּי אֱלִיעֶזֶר הָתָם, דְּאֶפְשָׁר בְּפַרְנָסָה, אֲבָל הָכָא דְּלָא אֶפְשָׁר – לָא. וְעַד בָּאן לַא קַאָמַר רַבִּי יָהוֹשָׁעַ הַתָּם, מְשׁוּם דָּאִיכַּא צַעַר בַּעֵלֵי חַיִּים, אֲבַל הַכָּא דְּלֵיכָּא צַעַר בַּעֵלִי חַיִּים – לַא.

From what does that conclusion ensue that the machlokot are parallel? Perhaps Rabbi Eliezer only stated that one may not raise the second animal there, in a case where it is possible to save the animal by feeding it in the pit; however, here, in the case of the barrel, where it is impossible to save without artifice, R. Yehoshua would permit using artifice. And similarly, perhaps Rabbi Yehoshua only said there in the case of the animals one may employ artifice because there is an issue of the suffering of living beings, but here, where there is no issue of the suffering of living beings, perhaps R. Yehoshua did not permit employing artifice.

2. בבלי פסחים מו:, מח.

ּ אִיתִּמַר: הַאוֹפָה מִיּוֹם טוֹב לָחוֹל, רַב חָסְדַא אַמַר: לוֹקָה, רַבַּה אַמַר: אֵינוֹ לוֹקָה.

It was stated that the amora'im disagree with regard to one who bakes bread on a Festival day for use during the week. Rav Ḥisda said: One is flogged because one has desecrated the Festival. Rabba said: One is not flogged.

ַרַב חִסְדָּא אָמַר לוֹקֶה: לָא אָמְרִינַן ״הוֹאִיל וּמִיקּלְעִי לֵיהּ אוֹרְחִים – חֲזֵי לֵיהּ״. רַבָּה אָמַר אֵינוֹ לוֹקֶה: אַמְרִינַן ״הוֹאִיל״...

The Gemara explains the two opinions: Rav Ḥisda said that one is flogged because we do not say that since guests may happen to visit, the bread is fit for the person baking. Rabba said that one is not flogged because we say that since guests may visit, the bread is considered to have been baked for use on the Festival day itself.

...אמי רמי בר חמא הא דרב חסדא ורבה מחלוקי רי אליעזר ורי יהושע דרי אליעזר סבר אמרינן... הואיל ורי יהושע סבר לא אמרינן הואיל...

...Rami b. Ḥama said: This [argument between] R. Ḥisda and Rabbah [regarding 'Since'] corresponds to the arguments between R. Eliezer and R. Joshua, that R. Eliezer held that we do say, 'Since' and R. Joshua held that we do not say: 'Since [...].'

3. בבלי שבת קלט:

ּאָמַר רַבָּה בַּר רַב הוּנָא: מַעֲרִים אָדָם עַל הַמְשַׁמֶּרֶת בְּיוֹם טוֹב לִתְלוֹת בָּהּ רְמוֹנִים, וְתוֹלֶה בָּהּ שְׁמָרִים. אַמַר רַב אַשִׁי: וְהוֹּא דְּתַלֶּה בַּהּ רְמוֹנִים.

Rabba bar Rav Huna said: (According to the Rabbis, who prohibit suspending a strainer on a Festival,) a person may nevertheless employ artifice and circumvent the prohibition against suspending a strainer by taking it on a Festival and suspending it for the purpose of pomegranates in it, which is permitted. (Once the strainer is suspended, one may suspend it in order to filter sediment from the wine, as even the Rabbis hold that on a Festival it is permitted to do this straining through a strainer that is already suspended.) Rav Ashi said: And this is only permitted provided that one actually suspended pomegranates in it before using it to strain wine.

ַ מַאי שְׁנָא מֵהָא דְּתַנְיָא: מְטִילִין שֵׁכָר בַּּמּוֹצֵד לְצוֹרֶךְ הַמּוֹצֵד, שֶׁלֹּא לְצוֹרֶךְ הַמּוֹצֵד – אָסוּר, אֶחָד שֵׁכַר תְּמָרִים וְאֶחָד שֵׁכַר שְׁעוֹרִים. אַף עַל פִּי שֶׁיֵּשׁ לָהֶן יָשָׁן – מַעֲרִים וְשׁוֹתֶה מִן הֶחָדָשׁ!

In what way is that halakha different from that which was taught in a baraita: One may begin brewing beer during the intermediate days of a Festival for the purpose of using it on the Festival. If it is not for the purpose of the Festival, it is prohibited. This is the halakha both with regard to date beer and with regard to barley beer. And even though one has old beer, one may employ artifice and drink from the new!

ָּהָתָם לָא מוֹכְחָא מִילְתָא, הָכָא מוֹכְחָא מִילְתָא.

There, with regard to beer, the matter is not evident. However, here, with regard to a strainer, the matter is evident.

אֲמַרוּ לֵיהּ רַבָּנֵן לְרַב אָשֵׁי: חֲזִי מָר הַאי צוּרְבָּא מֵרַבָּנֵן וְרֵב הוּנָא בֶּן רַבִּי חִיּוֹן שְׁמֵיהּ, וְאָמְרִי לַהּ רַב הוּנָא בְּרַבִּי חַלְווֹן שְׁמֵיהּ, דְשָׁקֵל בְּרָא דְתוּמָא וּמַנַּח בְּבַרְזָא דְדַנָּא, וְאָמֵר: לְאַצְנוֹעֵיהּ קְמִיכַּוִינָא. וְאָזֵיל וְנָאֵים בִּמַבָּרָא, וְעַבַר לִהַדְּ גִּיסָא וְסָיֵיר פִּירֵי, וְאָמֵר: אֵנָא לִמִינַם קַמִיכַּוִינָא!

The Rabbis said to Rav Ashi: Master, observe this Torah scholar, and Rav Huna ben Rabbi Ḥayon is his name, and some say that his name is Rav Huna, son of Rabbi Ḥalvan, who took a slice of garlic and placed it in the spout of a barrel, and said: I intend to store it. He thereby stopped the spout on Shabbat. And similarly, he went and slept in a ferry on the river, and the ferryman sailed the ferry across the river, and he thereby crossed to the other side and inspected the fruit of his vineyard. He said: I intend to sleep. In this way, he crosses the river by boat on Shabbat, which is a prohibited activity.

. בְּלְכִתְּחִילָּה Rav Ashi said to them: Are you speaking of artifice? This is artifice employed to circumvent a rabbinic prohibition, and a Torah scholar will not come to perform the action ab initio without artifice.

4. בבלי ביצה יז.-:

ָתָּא שְׁמֵע: מִי שֶׁלֹּא הִנִּיחַ עֵירוּבֵי תַבְשִּׁילִין, הֲרֵי זֶה לֹא יֹאפֶה וְלֹא יְבַשֵּׁל וְלֹא יַטְמִין, לֹא לוֹ וְלֹא לַאֲחֵרִים. וְלֹא אֲחֵרִים אוֹפִין וּמְבַשְּׁלִין לוֹ. כֵּיצֵד הוּא עוֹשֶׁה – מַקְנֶה קִמְחוֹ לַאֲחֵרִים וְאוֹפִין לוֹ וּמְבַשְּׁלִין לוֹ. שְׁמַע מִינַהּ: הוּא נֶאֱסָר וְקִמְחוֹ נֶאֱסָר, שְׁמַע מִינַהּ.

One who did not prepare an eiruv for the joining of cooked foods on a Festival eve may neither bake, nor cook, nor insulate food on the Festival for Shabbat that occurs on the following day, neither for oneself nor for others, and others may neither bake nor cook for that person. What should one do so that one will have food to eat on Shabbat? One must transfer their flour to others, and they may then bake and cook for that person. Learn from here that one is prohibited and one's flour is also prohibited.

אָיבַּעְיָא לְהוּ: עָבַר וְאָפָה, מַאי? תָּא שְׁמֵע: מִי שֶׁלֹא הִנִּיחַ עֵירוּבֵי תַבְשִׁילִין, כֵּיצֵד הוּא עוֹשֶׁה – מַקְנֶה קמחוֹ לַאָחֵרִים, וַאָחֵרִים אוֹפִין לוֹ וּמִבַשְּׁלִין לוֹ.

Another dilemma was raised before the Sages: In the case of one who transgressed this prohibition and baked on a Festival for Shabbat without having placed an eiruv for the joining of cooked foods on the eve of the Festival, what is the halakha? Come and hear a resolution to this question from the following baraita: With regard to one who did not prepare an eiruv for the joining of cooked foods, what should one do to have food to eat on Shabbat? One must transfer one's flour to others, and they may then bake and cook for that person.

וְאִי אִיתָא, לִיתְנֵי: עָבַר וְאָפָּה מוּתָּר! אָמַר רַב אַדָּא בַּר מַתְנָה: תַּנָּא, תַּקּנְתָּא דְהֶיתֵּרָא – קָתְנֵי, תַּקּנְתָּא דְאִסוּרָא – לָא קָתָנֵי.

And if it is so that if one baked without having placed an eiruv for the joining of cooked foods, it is permitted to eat the bread, let the baraita simply teach: With regard to one who transgressed the prohibition and baked, it is permitted to eat the bread. Rav Adda bar Mattana said: There is no proof from here, as the tanna is teaching a remedy involving acting in a permitted manner, and is not teaching a remedy involving a prohibited act.

ּתָּא שְׁמַע: מִי שֶׁהִנִּיחַ צִירוּבֵי תַבְשִׁילִין – הֲרֵי זֶה אוֹפֶה וּמְבַשֵּׁל וּמַטְמִין, וְאִם רָצָה לֶאֱכוֹל אֶת צִירוּבוֹ – הָרְשׁוּת בְּיָדוֹ. אֲכָלוֹ עַד שֶׁלֹא אָפָה עַד שֶׁלֹא הִסְמִין – הֲרֵי זֶה לֹא יֹאפֶה וְלֹא יְבַשֵּׁל וְלֹא יַסְמִין, לֹא לוֹ וְלֹא לַאֲחֵרִים. וָלֹא אֲחֵרִים אוֹפִין וּמְבַשְּׁלִין לוֹ.

Come and hear a resolution from a different baraita: One who prepared an eiruv for the joining of cooked foods on a Festival eve may bake and cook and insulate food on the Festival for Shabbat that occurs on the following day, and if one wants to eat one's eiruv on Shabbat, one has permission to do so. But if one ate it on the Festival before baking or insulating, one may neither bake, nor cook, nor insulate, neither for oneself nor for others, and likewise others may neither bake nor cook for that person.

אַבָּל מְבַשֵּׁל הוּא לְיוֹם טוֹב, וְאִם הוֹתִיר – הוֹתִיר לַשַּׁבָּת, וּבִלְבַד שֶׁלֹא יַצְרִים. וְאִם הֶצֶרִים – אָסוּר! However, even without an eiruv, one in this situation may cook for the Festival itself, and if one left over part of what he cooked, one has left it over for Shabbat, provided that one does not employ artifice to circumvent the prohibition. And if one employed artifice to circumvent the prohibition, it is prohibited to eat the food. (This indicates that one who cooks on a Festival for Shabbat in a prohibited manner may not eat the food.)

אָמֵר רַב אָשִׁי: הַעְרָמָה קָא אָמְרַתְּ – שָׁאנֵי הַעֲרָמָה דְאַחְמִירוּ בַּהּ רַבְּנַן טְפֵי מְמֵּזִיד. Rav Ashi said: This is no proof, as you speak of a case of artifice, and a case of artifice is different, as the Sages were more stringent with regard to one who employs artifice than with regard to one who intentionally cooks on a Festival for Shabbat!
